THE NATURAL FILLER SOLUTION

In recent years, the common desire to maintain a youthful and fresh appearance and the introduction of new minimally invasive techniques with increasingly natural effects has led to a real boom in the demand for aesthetic facial rejuvenation treatments such as fillers and botox. Consumers therefore have growing expectations of cosmetic products, considered essential for maintaining our skin's beauty and health, and require these products to deliver increasingly immediate visible results, while respecting the criteria of sustainability, safety and user-friendliness.

To guarantee maximum effectiveness and keep up with the times, [comfort zone] has chosen to relaunch the Sublime Skin anti-aging line, which has now been revamped and strengthened to ensure an even higher level of performance in treating not only the effects of structural aging, but also the deep-seated causes at a cellular level, while ensuring greater environmental sustainability in accordance with the brand's conscious skin science philosophy.

Over the years, all skin layers undergo a structural degeneration process, defined by the [comfort zone] laboratories as DEGENER-AGING™, which compromises the three fundamental components of skin structure – water, proteins and lipids – and is manifested on the face with the appearance of wrinkles, loss of tone and a sunken look. As the skin ages, and as a result of constant external and internal stimuli, it also sustains deep damage that can permanently alter cell function and make cells senescent. The cells stop dividing and start releasing molecules that are harmful to neighboring cells and tissues known as SASPs (senescence-associated secretory phenotypes), triggering a chain process of premature SENESENCE, which further aggravates aging in all layers of the skin.

[comfort zone] scientific research has resulted in the new Sublime Skin and enhanced Archi-lift™ technology for an effective natural filler effect. The combination of innovative Acetyl Hexapeptide-8, which counteracts cellular senescence and inhibits muscle contraction, and Achillea Millefolium extract, which promotes collagen synthesis and protection (+35% collagen and -49% collagenase after 48 h, in vitro test), works synergistically to reduce wrinkles, firm the skin and reveal a fresher, younger-looking face.

The INTENSIVE SERUM, the line's hero product, is ideal for providing a youthful and healthy appearance to all skin types in all weather conditions: its effectiveness on cellular senescence has been proven through an in vitro test that shows that SASPs are halved after 48 h. Furthermore, clinical studies conducted on a sample of 100 women showed a -25% reduction in wrinkles, an improvement in elasticity for 95% and an improvement in texture for 70% of the women.

With a view to sustainability and circularity, the new serum comes with an innovative refill pack that allows the glass bottle to be reused for 1 year and more easily recycled. Moreover, repeated purchase of the refill, which weighs 91% less than the original pack, reduces CO2 emissions and therefore helps to limit environmental impact.

ALL THE FORMULAS ARE CLEAN, dermatologically tested on sensitive skin, suitable for vegans and contain up to 99.5% ingredients of natural origin. They are free of silicones, parabens, animal derivatives, artificial colorants, and synthetic fragrances. They are now also free of acrylates and PEGs, gelling agents and emulsifiers that are very common in cosmetics, but not readily biodegradable in the environment.

The line guarantees even more lasting and visible results by following the specific home routine, which includes a pre-treatment step with the new MICROPEEL LOTION, a daily perfecting face lotion formulated with 2.5% lactic acid and 2.5% gluconolactone for delicate and progressive daily micro-exfoliation that brightens and improves the texture and ensures that the products used later in the beauty routine are more absorbent and effective. When the skin requires a shock treatment, the new LIFT & FIRM AMPOULES with Epidermal Growth Factors (EGF) and peptides replenish wrinkles and instantly deliver a younger, smoother appearance.

With the re-launch, the offer of professional treatments [comfort zone] has also been completely enhanced, in particular with the innovative DOUBLE PEEL METHOD which, with the layered application of different blends of alpha-hydroxy acids, offers high-performance peels that can be customized for all needs – wrinkles, spots, and delicate skin – while maintaining a healthy skin barrier at all times. 100% of the panelists were satisfied with the treatments and results.

As part of the company's efforts to increase sustainability, a Life Cycle Assessment (LCA) was conducted for the new Sublime Skin, which makes it possible to calculate the amount of CO2 equivalent emitted throughout the product's life cycle, and then fully offset it thanks to the Davines Group's proprietary reforestation and social development project, Ethio Trees.

Sublime Skin is therefore a completely carbon offset line from the source... to you.

SUBLIME SKIN

THE NATURAL FILLER SOLUTION

SKIN STRUCTURE AND AGING

Over the years, all skin layers undergo specific alterations that lead to degeneration of the three fundamental components that make up the skin structure – water, proteins and lipids – and the consequent appearance of wrinkles, loss of tone and less well-defined facial contours. This physiological process of structural skin aging has been defined by [comfort zone] laboratories as DEGENER-AGING™.

In the EPIDERMIS cell turnover slows, the complexion fades, and dehydration compromises the firmness of the skin texture due to the reduced amount of hyaluronic acid, leading to the appearance of wrinkles.

In the DERMIS, the skin's support structure, the most significant transformations take place with the progressive disorganization of the extracellular matrix and the reduction of proteins, collagen and elastin responsible for skin sagging. At the same time, dermal hyaluronic acid is reduced and creates depletion that causes and exposes wrinkles.

The HYPODERMIS, consisting of connective tissue and adipocytes, also loses efficiency, reducing the definition of the facial contours. Over the years, the adipose cushion, known as the 'Bichat bubble', which is responsible for supporting the cheek and giving it roundness, tends to shrink, and with it the facial muscles that play a physical support role tend to weaken, exacerbating the loss of facial contour definition.

In addition to the transformation that takes place in the three skin levels, the effect of INVOLUNTARY FACIAL MUSCLE CONTRACTION should also be considered. This contraction follows facial expression, resulting in so-called expression lines that mainly appear on the forehead, between the eyebrows, and at the sides of the lips. While in youth these only appear when the muscles contract, as we age the skin becomes increasingly less elastic and the marks therefore become permanent.

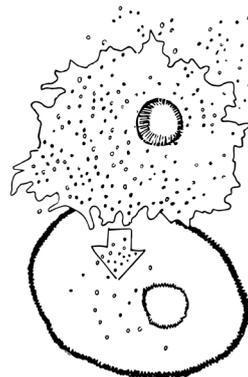

INNOVATION: CELLULAR AGING

With the relaunch of Sublime Skin, the [comfort zone] laboratories have further deepened their knowledge of skin aging mechanisms in order to offer even more complete and effective cosmetic solutions. The innovation relates to the treatment of cellular senescence, a critical phenomenon that accompanies skin aging and affects all cells and all skin layers, globally and progressively compromising skin vitality and functionality.

Our cells understand when they are aging and demonstrate this by putting a stop to what they have always done, slowing down and ending their replication process.

When they reach the senescence stage, cells essentially die, and no stimulation with growth factors can induce them to proliferate again.

Moreover, studies in the field of cell biology have shown that senescent cells release harmful substances, known as SASPs (senescence-associated secretory phenotypes), inflammatory molecules that attack neighboring cells, causing them to enter a state of premature senescence.

SUBLIME SKIN

THE NATURAL FILLER SOLUTION

THE SOLUTION: THE NATURAL FILLER SOLUTION

NEW: ACETYL HEXAPEPTIDE-8

This triggers a chain reaction that leads to a worsening of the DEGENER-AGING™ phenomenon and accelerates the aging process in all skin layers:

In the EPIDERMIS secretion of inflammatory SASP molecules by senescent cells leads to an altered turnover with consequent weakening of the barrier function and therefore greater water loss.

In the DERMIS, the senescence process alters the morphology and functionality of fibroblasts, which are less elongated and can no longer adequately synthesize collagen and elastin. There is also an increase in metalloproteinases, the enzymes that degrade collagen and elastin, damaging the skin, which becomes less firm and elastic.

In the HYPODERMIS secretion of inflammatory SASP molecules also reduces adipogenesis, leading to less lipid accumulation, which explains the loss of tissue volume observed with age. Adipose tissue is made up of adipose cells or adipocytes, which are distinguished by a nucleus that is flattened and shifted to the edge to allow room for the accumulation of lipids. With the aging process, cells change their morphology and produce progressively less fat.

Extensive scientific work by [comfort zone] researchers has led to the enhancement of the entire Sublime Skin line thanks to a new pool of active ingredients, a new home routine and even more effective professional treatments to combat senescence and therefore the effects and root causes of DEGENER-AGING™. Increasingly advanced, cleaner and more sustainable solutions, clinically proven to reduce wrinkles and plump and firm the face, for a true NATURAL FILLER EFFECT.

In particular, the obvious link between senescent cells and the degeneration of skin structure has led to the strengthening of Archi-lift™ technology with an innovative peptide that protects cells from aging, and a botanical extract derived from regenerative agriculture and studied in the Davines Village Scientific Garden, our 'open-air laboratory' in Parma, which promotes collagen synthesis and protection. Combined use of the serum and creams therefore creates a synergy and makes it possible to boost the effectiveness of the specific active ingredients chosen to reinforce the skin structure.

The high-tech active ingredient chosen to increase the effectiveness of Archi-lift™ technology and featured in the new Sublime Skin Intensive Serum is a hexapeptide resulting from the latest research in the field of aging. It was chosen for its dual action: it reduces the visibility of expression wrinkles and helps to weaken the degeneration caused by senescent cells.

In vitro testing has shown that the hexapeptide effectively reduces damage caused by inflammatory molecules (SASPs) released by senescent cells, benefiting the skin's three key components: water, proteins and lipids.

The amino acid sequence of the selected hexapeptide, composed of only 6 amino acids, makes it ideal for binding to the receptor that releases the muscle contraction skin neurotransmitter responsible for facial expression, and thus for inhibiting muscle contraction and reducing wrinkles and expression lines.

IN VITRO EFFECTIVENESS TEST

The choice of this peptide was finalized after a long study that concluded with instrumental measurements conducted in vitro on fibroblast cultures, the dermal cells responsible for collagen and elastin synthesis. The test was conducted with the aim of measuring the product's effectiveness in reducing SASPs, the inflammatory molecules released by senescent cells. Three characteristic SASP molecules were selected: interleukins and chemokines (inflammatory proteins) and metalloproteinases (enzymes responsible for collagen and elastin breakdown). The senescence situation was recreated in vitro by treating the fibroblasts with an oxidizing agent. Cell cultures were analyzed using immunofluorescence techniques to highlight the serum's anti-SASP activity. The intensity of the green color highlights the presence of SASPs and is notable in the sample subjected to oxidative treatment, but not treated with the serum. Conversely, images representing serum-treated cells show a statistically significant decrease in the green area, demonstrating a reduction in the expression of SASPs. The in vitro test showed a statistically significant reduction in the release of SASPs, which was at least halved in all three cases, with a 62.6% reduction for interleukins.

INNOVATION: ACHILLEA MILLEFOLIUM EXTRACT

The new Archi-lift™ technology is completed and enhanced by a new anti-aging botanical extract with a completely traceable supply chain, studied in the Davines Village Scientific Garden in Parma and cultivated through regenerative agriculture, fully reflecting the brand's conscious skin science philosophy. Achillea Millefolium was chosen after an in-depth study of the scientific literature that allowed us to identify its very interesting cosmetic profile and past use in medicine. Some specimens were then planted in the area where the medicinal plants of the Davines scientific garden are harvested so that our team of researchers could harvest the flowers and study their properties.

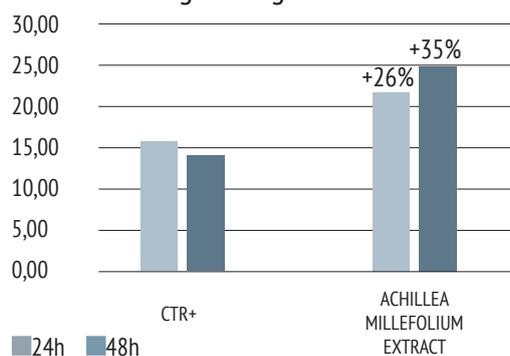

Achillea has an exquisite appearance and its name evokes its specific effectiveness on the skin, derived from the Greek hero Achilles, who used this plant to heal his comrades' wounds during the siege of Troy. Through high-pressure water extraction and air exclusion, we obtained our active ingredient rich in chlorogenic acid, which effectively improves collagen content.

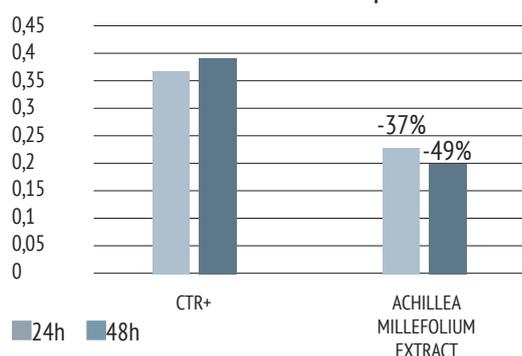

IN VITRO EFFECTIVENESS TEST

The anti-aging and toning effectiveness that we can boast for Achillea extract has been studied in vitro through the measurement of two fundamental parameters for skin structure: collagen synthesis and the activity of the enzymes that destroy it, the MMP1 (metalloproteinases). The test showed that the active ingredient can modulate these two mechanisms under 24 h and 48 h stress conditions. All cells, both those treated with Achillea and untreated cells, were irradiated by a solar simulator to recreate a stress condition and collagen and MMP1 levels were then measured. Comparing the data obtained, in the cells treated with Achillea, there is both an increase in collagen synthesis and a decrease in the activity of metalloproteinase enzymes that destroy collagen, thereby protecting it over time.

ARCHI-LIFT TECHNOLOGY™

Achillea embodies our commitment to sustainable science that delivers performance and has a positive impact on the environment. For its cultivation, we chose a plot of land near Davines Village, which is part of a land reclamation project in the province of Parma that harnesses the potential of biodiversity and CO2 sequestration through regenerative agriculture and the protection of wild plants.

In addition to hexapeptide and Achillea, other active ingredients are included in the ARCHI-LIFT TECHNOLOGY™ for global action on the three key components of the skin.

HYALURONIC ACID, renowned for its hygroscopic properties, attracts and retains water with a hydro-filler action. Thanks to modern technologies, it has been included with two molecular weights that act at different levels. MACRO hyaluronic acid for immediate action on the epidermis and the latest-generation MICRO hyaluronic acid for longer lasting and deeper action on the dermis.

PAEONIA ALBIFLORA EXTRACT, simulating the lipo-filler action, preserves the lipid content. It promotes the maturation of pre-adipocytes into adipocytes, and restores volume to facial adipocytes.

PLANTAGO LANCEOLATA is a perennial plant native to Eurasia that has been known since ancient times and is named after its unique lance-shaped flowers. It has recently been studied for the incredible restructuring and protective properties of its protein structure, particularly in relation to collagen and elastin. The extract, titrated in plantamajoside, is the first cosmetic active ingredient that can inhibit microRNAs, which block the correct synthesis of collagen and elastin, dermal proteins essential for skin tone. It also regulates the efficiency of melanocytes, helping to prevent age spots, and brightens the face.

ACETYL TETRAPEPTIDE-11 and ACETYL TETRAPEPTIDE-9 act at cellular level, increasing collagen synthesis and promoting interaction between the components of the skin structure. They support the correct organization of collagen fibers in the extracellular matrix, strengthen the epidermal-dermal junction and improve tissue tone.

PROFESSIONAL

The professional range has been enhanced with a special focus on peels with the aim of providing increased performance and customized solutions for different skin needs: wrinkles, hyperpigmentation, sensitive skin and delicate areas. This has been achieved thanks to the exclusive [comfort zone] DOUBLE PEEL method in which different acid mixtures are sequentially applied for greater effectiveness in complete safety. The popular SUBLIME SKIN PEEL-OFF MASK remains the core of the PRO-LIFT treatment.

DOUBLE PEEL METHOD

The innovative [comfort zone] DOUBLE PEEL METHOD uses a 2-step modular approach that allows the universal lactic acid booster to be combined with the specific acid blend for different skin needs.

STEP 1 SUBLIME SKIN PEEL BOOSTER with 15% Lactic Acid is first applied to the skin for an initial action of weakening the intercellular junctions of the keratinocytes in the stratum corneum. This first step promotes greater absorption and effectiveness of the subsequently applied peel:

STEP 2 this stage allows the peel to be customized based on the desired result:

- SUBLIME SKIN AGE PEEL (acids: 38,5%) correction of wrinkles and signs of aging

- SUBLIME SKIN BRIGHT PEEL (acids: 35%) brightening

- SUBLIME SKIN DELICATE PEEL (acids: 25%) renewal action for delicate and sensitive skin

The effectiveness of the DOUBLE PEEL method has been further enhanced with the integration of homecare products designed to prepare skin before professional peels, increase benefits during the treatment cycle, and prolong and maintain results after completion of the treatment cycle.

TREATMENTS

The [comfort zone] Education team worked alongside Test Space to design an advanced treatment package, reorganized to provide a globally aligned approach consisting of two types of protocols:

PROVEN RESULTS

The sensory gratification and efficacy of the new Sublime Skin products were tested internally through various levels of analysis: evaluations conducted in the [comfort zone] Test Space, national and international panels and finally dermatological evaluations conducted thanks to the collaboration with the dermatology department of Parma University.

The desire to have an international evaluation led us to collaborate with a network of contacts in Europe, Asia and the USA, enabling us to involve 100 panelists with different skin conditions, climates, cosmetic habits and lifestyles in the evaluation of the Intensive Serum, the line's hero product.

In-use satisfaction measured by the panel was subsequently verified by independent external laboratories using customized protocols to measure key parameters for communicating product efficacy.

To summarize the overall result very briefly: 140 people were involved in the efficacy test with at least 95% satisfaction for each product.

The products and professional treatments were conceived and studied in the [comfort zone] Test Space with the collaboration of the Education team and the evaluation was subsequently extended internationally to Europe, Asia and the USA.

The peel offer was renewed with the dual aim of enhancing effectiveness and increasing specificity of action. Self-assessment questionnaires for each product and treatment were collected to support the quality of the proposal.

The synergy between the professional treatments and the homecare routine of Age Peel and Bright Peel was tested under dermatological supervision, using self-assessment questionnaires and digital imaging techniques for visible interpretation of effectiveness.

CONSCIOUS PACKAGING

The new Sublime Skin packaging expresses the line's values of sustainability and elegance.

In line with circular economy principles, it has been 'eco-designed', paying great attention to the product's end of life and introducing important innovations to limit its CO2 footprint.

The INTENSIVE SERUM comes in an elegant glass container with a refill that has a double advantage: it can be REUSED by easily replacing the internal refill and it can also be EASILY RECYCLED since its various constituent materials can be separated. Purchasing the refill reduces environmental impact because it weighs 91% less than the original serum and you can keep the outer part to avoid throwing it away after just one use. This container is guaranteed for one year from first use.

The glass jar used for the CREAM and LIFT-MASK is another important achievement by [comfort zone] aimed at greater sustainability: eco-designed to make it as LIGHT as possible without altering its aesthetic and functionality (-17% compared to the previous jar) and consequently reducing its environmental impact, this new jar is made with 42.6% RECYCLED GLASS.

For both retail and professional peel solutions we have abolished single-use packaging by switching to recycled PET plastic packaging.

The boxes are made of 100% FSC-CERTIFIED RECYCLED PAPER (from well-managed forests). Eliminating internal leaflets has REDUCED THE USE OF PAPER.

The labels and tubes are made of PE PLASTIC DERIVED FROM SUGAR CANE.

The professional bottles and peel pads jar are made of RECYCLED PET PLASTIC.

All the packaging components can be easily separated by hand and managed in recycling channels.

OUR CONSCIOUS COMMITMENT

An LCA (Life Cycle Assessment) was also carried out for SUBLIME SKIN. This is a quantitative and precise measurement of the entire life cycle that allows us to accurately measure the environmental impact of each product. In particular, the analysis makes it possible to calculate the Global Warming Potential, i.e. the quantity of CO2 equivalent (CO2 + other gases) emitted during the product's life cycle: from the choice of raw materials to packaging to the production and processing stage at Davines Village, including transport and end-of-life.

We have therefore chosen to offset the environmental footprint of the Sublime Skin range by participating in the Davines Group's proprietary reforestation and social development project Ethio Trees. Sublime Skin is therefore a completely carbon offset line from the source to you, a concrete proof of [comfort zone]'s commitment to helping reduce the climate crisis.

HOW IT WORKS

MICRO AND MACRO HYALURONIC ACID (0,3%) renowned for its hydroscopic properties, has the ability to attract and retain water, imitating the hydro-filler. Thanks to modern technologies, it has been included with two molecular weights to act at different levels. The Macro version for an immediate action at the epidermal level and the latest generation Micro version for a more progressive and profound effect at the dermal level.

PAEONIA ALBIFLORA EXTRACT mimics the lipo-filler effect, restoring the correct functioning of the adipocytes. In fact, it stimulates the transformation of pre-adipocytes into adipocytes.

PLANTAGO LANCEOLATA titrated extract, thanks to the inhibition of the microRNA, stimulates new collagen and elastin and protects their correct functioning. It also reduces the appearance of age spots and helps to prevent them.

TETRAPEPTIDE-11 and TETRAPEPTIDE-9 act at cellular level increasing collagen synthesis, and promote the interaction among the bricks of skin structure. In fact they support the correct organization of collagen fibers in the ECM and help tighten epidermal cohesion and epidermis-dermis conjunction, resulting in wrinkle reduction and increased skin density.

ACHILLEA MILLEFOLIUM from the Davines Scientific Garden, one of the oldest known botanicals used by humans, rediscovered and extracted with a sustainable method that uses high-pressure water. The name originates from the Greek mythological figure, Achilles, who used Achillea to heal his wounds. Rich in chlorogenic acid, it is clinically proven to increase collagen synthesis and reduce collagenase.

HOW TO USE

Apply morning and evening on its own, after cleansing, or after the Sublime Skin Intensive Serum for a boosted anti-aging and nourishing action.

RECOMMENDED

For dry skin and in cold seasons/weather.

HOW IT WORKS

HESPERIDIN multi-peptide complex with three actions on puffiness and signs of fatigue in the eye area: reduces capillary permeability, activates the lymphatic system and reduces inflammation.

HOW IT WORKS

0.2% MACRO HYALURONIC ACID: thanks to its structure and its film-forming properties, it promotes skin hydration and provides an immediate lifting effect.
ACETYL HEXAPEPTIDE 1: a biomimetic peptide scientifically designed to mimic the action of botox, it acts at the neuromuscular junction level by inhibiting muscle contraction mechanisms. This effect results in the relaxation of surface wrinkles, which are reduced in both volume and depth.

PLANT-BASED EGF: oligopeptide-1 obtained biotechnologically from a plant structure. It regulates the synthesis of extracellular matrix components responsible for the fullness and tone of the face. It improves cell regeneration and stimulates the natural production of hyaluronic acid, collagen and elastin, which significantly increase skin elasticity and firmness.

HOW TO USE

Apply to cleansed skin in the morning and evening. The content of one vial is sufficient for at least two applications per day.

Use the special vial breaker and open the vial with a firm movement, breaking at level with the indicated mark. Position the drop dispenser on the neck of the open vial and gently press the dispenser to release the desired amount of product into the palm of your hand. HORMONES AND WOMEN

Hormones play a central role over the course of every woman's life. It is well-known that their cyclical fluctuations can influence the physical, mental and emotional well-being.

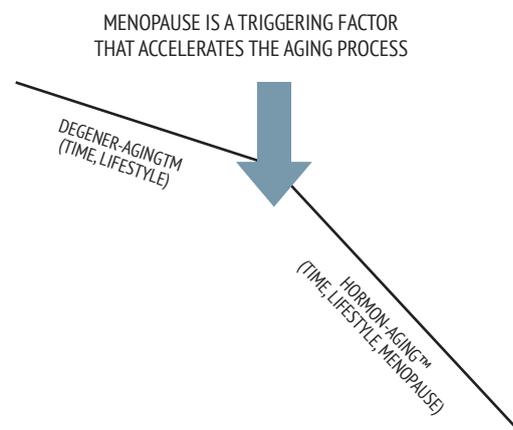

This is particularly true during menopause, the phase when the ovaries stop functioning with a subsequent decrease in estrogen production, and also when the impact of hormones on the body and on emotions becomes much more apparent. Menopause is an inevitable and natural part of a woman's life, which on average happens around the age of fifty. Despite creating some unpleasant side effects, it can and should be experienced as the physiological beginning of a new phase of life and not as the end of something. Choosing an integrated, well thought-through approach, designed with the help of experts, is vital to help cope with this time of significant change with a feeling of vitality and positivity. And this is even more important considering that thanks to scientific progress, today's life expectancy is longer than before. There is even more time to enjoy your post-menopause life, which may amount to a third of your total existence!

HORMON-AGING™

[comfort zone] considers aging as a multi-factor process, which can be affected not only by the passing of time and lifestyle in general, but also by hormonal deficiency caused by menopause. This is why we have chosen to define all skin changes in this phase as Hormon-aging™:

- extreme dryness
- thinning and increased fragility
- loss of density

There is also an increase in the typical signs of Degener-aging™, such as deep wrinkles, loss of skin tone and facial sagging.

FOCUS ON HORMONAL CHANGES

It can start around the age of 40, with irregular menstrual cycles due to the drop in progesterone and subsequent drops in estrogen. It is influenced by genetic and environmental factors, the balance between body fat and muscle, and definitely by lifestyle.

Menopause is considered to have occurred once 12 months have passed since the last period. Hot flashes and other unexpected discomforts are very common.

POST-MENOPAUSE is when a new hormonal balance is established and the temporary side effects have decreased.

CELLULAR ANARCHY

Why do hormones play such a key role with the onset of menopause? The reason is that they create an "anarchy" in the organism and in the skin. Hormones are powerful messengers within the circulatory system. They spread and reach target cells found in clusters, organs and tissues, often far from their point of secretion - and influence the way they function.

SUBLIME SKIN

AGING 50+

Hormones are responsible for an intricate and complete communication network, the endocrine system, which maintains balance in the body and ensures that all organs, including the skin, are functioning properly. Any variation causes a positive or negative reaction which can influence both the physical state as well as the emotions. On a physical level, the drop in estrogens results in greater bone fragility. The metabolism slows down and causes a redistribution of fatty deposits which tend to accumulate around the abdomen, thighs, buttocks and jawline, while diminishing on face, neck, hands and arms.

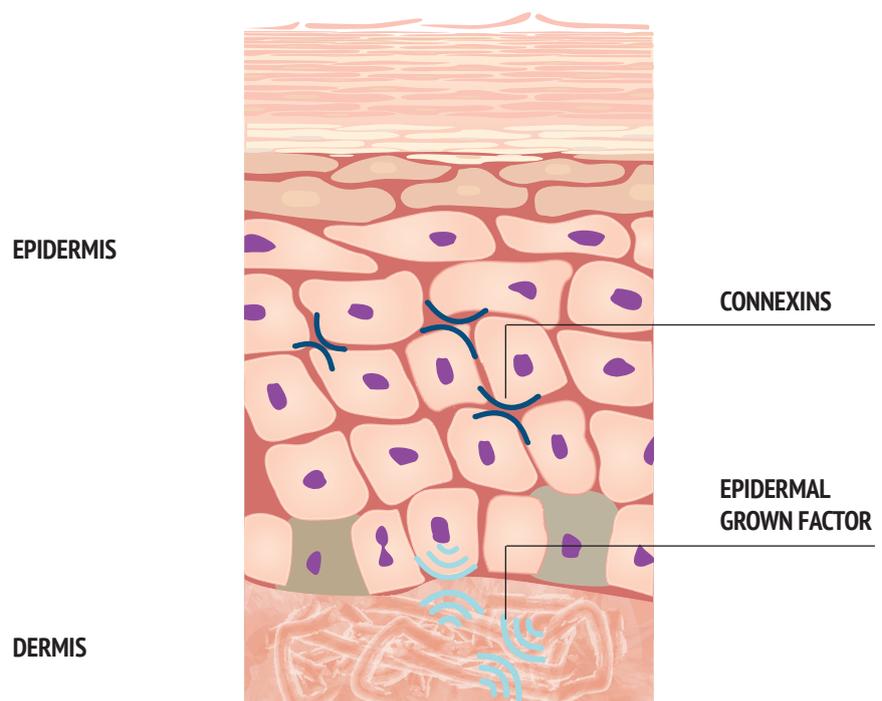

As for the skin, the drop of estrogens leads to visible signs of aging, such as extreme dryness, thinning, fragility and loss of skin density. These effects are made even more dramatic by the impaired skin's cellular communication, which is another consequence of menopause. No cell lives in isolation: a complex communication network coordinates the growth, differentiation and the metabolism of the skin cells. In some cases, the cell-to-cell link is close, but in others when further apart, communication only happens through messenger molecules being sent.

PHYSIOLOGICAL CHANGES IN THE SKIN

The three physiological processes which are mainly affected by menopause are cellular communication, skin regeneration and vitamin D synthesis.

1. INEFFICIENT CELLULAR COMMUNICATION

Influenced by the drop in estrogen levels and as a result of the normal aging process, the slowdown in direct communication between neighbouring skin cells, and the exchange of the signals between cells in the epidermis and the dermis layers, accelerates the normal processes of aging. This significantly damages the skin's functioning. There is also a significant reduction in the quantity of the protein channels, the connexins. They are essential to create bridges for communication between adjacent cells, while the Skin Growth Factors (SGF), are physical messengers, that link the cells between epidermis and dermis. This overall reduction dramatically affects the skin's functionality. The turnover of epidermal keratinocytes slows down, fibroblast activity reduces and the skin, which has less structure, is likely to age much more quickly.

VISIBLE CHANGES IN THE SKIN

2. SLOWER REGENERATION

With the drop in hormone levels and the decrease in functionality of the cellular communication systems, cellular metabolism begins to slow down.

The epidermis becomes thinner while the outermost layer of the epidermis becomes thicker due to accumulations of dead cells (corneocytes) on the surface.

The skin becomes less dense and loses its structure as a consequence of the reduction in elastin, and more significantly in collagen. Collagen changes in consistency, becoming fragmented in appearance. Its progressive reduction starts from the age of forty, but it only accelerates from menopause onwards. On average, a woman going through menopause loses 2,1% of her collagen every year. The reduction is actually quicker during the first few post-menopause years compared to the years to follow: it is estimated that the amount of collagen in the skin falls by around 30% over the first five years.

3. COMPROMISED VITAMIN D SYNTHESIS

Vitamin D is often compromised in menopausal women. Despite its name, it is not actually a vitamin: it is a pro-hormone which communicates and sends messages to further-away cells. It is essential for managing calcium and phosphorous levels and for bone mineralization. Vitamin D also has a direct effect on the skin, where it is not only synthesized but also carries out a regulatory role. Around 90% of vitamin D synthesis happens in the skin where the precursor is present and is activated by UVB rays. Vitamin D strongly influences the integrity of the cutaneous barrier, through the link with the VDR receptor. Once it has created a link to the receptor, it regulates the turnover of the keratinocytes and the formation of lipids in the outer epidermis, stimulating the key steps of the synthesis of the barrier: differentiation, cornification and desquamation. A decline in vitamin D and in its receptors means that the epidermal barrier becomes thinner, more fragile and less functional.

At the skin level, the impact of hormonal changes and cellular anarchy are very specific and become visible from the pre-menopausal period, generating different effects from person to person depending on the remaining estrogen in the body.

EXTREME DRYNESS

The outer layer of the epidermis has a vital role in retaining moisture and thus the softness and flexibility of the skin. In normal conditions, the outer layer exfoliates naturally, resulting in a release of substances which work to create a natural moisturizing factor (NMF) which includes amino acids, lactic acid, urea, sugars and salts. It is essential to retain water on the surface of the epidermis.

During menopause, due to the slowdown in cellular turnover, the production of NMF reduces and, when added to the lower levels of vitamin D, the skin's moisture barrier becomes more fragile, with a subsequent increase in transepidermal water loss (TEWL). This phenomenon explains the significant increase in skin dryness, which is a typical side-effect of menopause.

THINNING AND FRAGILITY

With menopause, the wall-like structure of the skin barrier, which is made of corneocytes (the bricks) and lipids (the cement), weakens. The reduction of NMF deeply compromises the correct functioning of the skin barrier. The skin becomes more open to attacks from atmospheric and environmental agents (sun, wind, dust, pollution), intense temperature changes (sudden and extreme cold or heat), and harsh cosmetics which can provoke sensitivity and intolerances.

SUBLIME SKIN

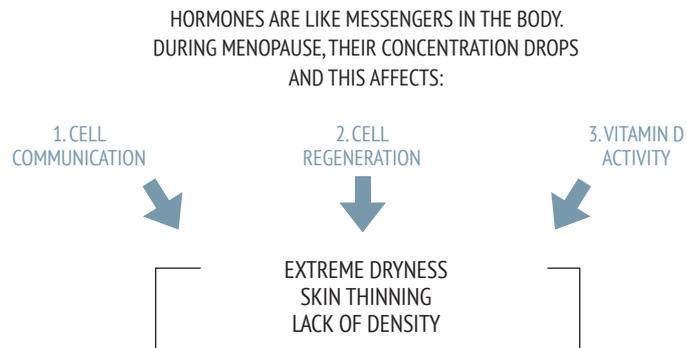

AGING 50+

LOSS OF SKIN DENSITY

The reduced functionality of fibroblasts significantly affects skin density: the loss of the tissue structure causes skin thinning and loss of elasticity. The dermal layer reduces in thickness by 1% every year in the 18 years following menopause. Every year, the skin loses approximately 1,1% of its tone, and its elasticity reduces by about 1,5%. These two factors combined compromise also the amount of hyaluronic acid and thus the water content of the skin, making it look less plump and full.

SUBLIME SKIN AGING 50+

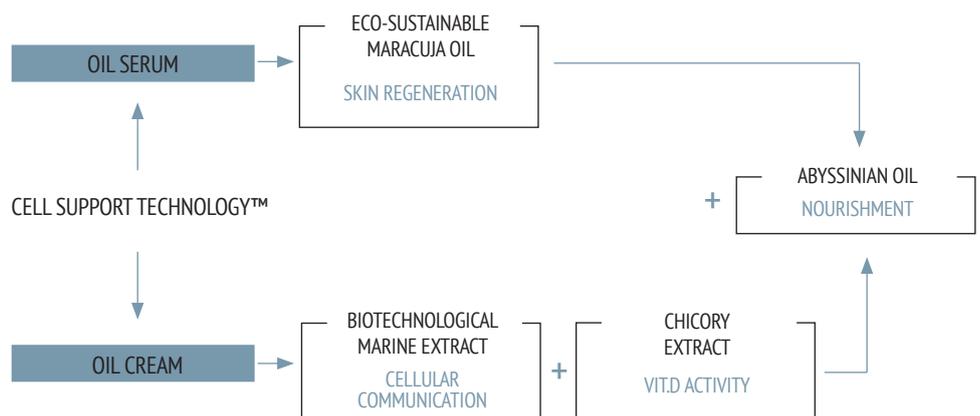

Sublime Skin line extension targeting Hormon-aging™ offers an, integrated approach which has been specifically created for menopausal women. It comprises two new formulations for home care and professional use, plus a new regenerating facial and lifestyle tips created by our Research Team, supported by the experts Nutridermatologist Dr. Maria Bucci and Dr. Alyssa Burns-Hill, a Hormone Health Specialist.

CELL-SUPPORT TECHNOLOGY™

Sublime Skin Oil Serum and Oil Cream fight the visible effects of Hormon-Aging™ such as extreme dryness, thinner, more fragile skin and loss of density. The exclusive Cell-Support Technology™ uses the synergistic effect of chicory extract, a biotechnological marine extract and eco-sustainable maracuja oil, to restore optimal functionality of the skin and contrast cellular anarchy. Its main 3 actions in response to estrogen drop are:

1. Revitalizes the cellular communication to recreate the ideal conditions for dermal and epidermal functioning.
2. Promotes cell regeneration from within by stimulating the metabolism of the cells of the epidermis and dermis, it favors an increase in collagen, elastin and hyaluronic acid, for a denser, more elastic skin.
3. Stimulates vitamin d activity in the skin for a stronger barrier, reducing the thinning and fragility of the skin, and consequently improving its level of hydration.

HORMONAL CHANGES: THE HOLISTIC APPROACH

It is fundamental for each spa therapist to have a bigger picture that goes beyond the simple cutaneous manifestation, in order to offer a professional response and an adequate solution to this phase of life. Following, some insights on the mental and physical evolution of women during menopause and a few precious lifestyle tips to encourage maximum comfort during the professional treatment and for home care.

SUBLIME SKIN

AGING 50+

PHYSICAL MANIFESTATIONS

On a physical level:

The basal metabolism decreases and it is easier to gain weight, particularly around the middle. One may suffer from insomnia or mood swings.

Uncontrollable vasomotor reactions can occur (such as hot flashes or sweating).

Skin loses tone and becomes more wrinkled and discoloured.

Hair becomes weaker and may fall out in greater quantities.

Some health risks increase, due to less protection offered by estrogen, such as cardiocirculatory illnesses, hypertension and bone calcification.

The immune system is less efficient due to the natural decline in organ function, but also due to a deficiency in vitamin D, which is one of the key defining factors of menopause. The body is more exposed to illness and takes longer to recover.

PROFESSIONAL EMPATHY

Concerning the treatment, the efficacy of the active ingredients and specific manual techniques need to be enhanced by an empathetic approach, which will have an extremely positive impact on appearance and mood. In addition to a strong technical training, the spa therapist should keep in mind that even though menopause is associated with a wide variety of manifestations that affect all women, each person experiences them in a very personal way, with varying emotional reactions and needs. It is essential to observe and comprehend the individual needs of each client, in order to build a relationship of trust and understanding, and to correctly interact.

Some women may want to talk about what they are going through, which means that active listening will be fundamental. Others may prefer silence and look for a relaxing and caring moment, determined by the empathic touch that can help them connect with their body and its changes.

LIFESTYLE TIPS

Comprehending that these changes are physiological is the first step towards awareness. At the same time, it is important to carry out some modifications and implement a lifestyle that can have a positive impact on mind, body and skin. This should be done at all stages of life but with menopause, it is important not to lose time, and take care of yourself in the most complete and effective manner, to create a new dimension of vitality.

FOOD

A balanced diet allows not only to maintain the right body weight, which can often be difficult due to a slower metabolism, but nourish your body with the right nutrients to deal with this phase of hormonal change.

Protein: it is important to eat the right quantity of protein, which can come from plant-based sources (cereals, vegetables) and also the right amount of fibre (wholegrain bread and pasta and plant-based foods). It is also useful to eat more seeds, which provide protein, without having to increase your daily quantity of meat or dairy products. Chia seeds, hemp seeds and pumpkin seeds can be added to yoghurts, soup and desserts - with the latter being limited to special occasions!

SUBLIME SKIN

AGING 50+

Water: it is key to properly hydrate your body, and drinking at least two litres of still water every day as well as reducing the amount of salt in your diet can help avoid water retention, which is a common effect of the slowdown in circulation. Drinking water with lemon can help to alkalize your body, and along with fruit and vegetable juices, can also help combat any unexpected pangs of hunger which may strike due to hormone level drops rather than a lack of calories.

Alcohol and coffee: for those who suffer from hot flashes or disturbed sleep, it is recommended that both alcohol and coffee are consumed in moderation.

Sugar: reducing desserts, finding natural substitutes (such as stevia) to sweeten coffee or tea, and consuming dark chocolate are simple steps which can have a significant benefit in controlling weight and also reducing the amount of visceral fat (generated by alternating glycemic highs and lows).

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY

A moderate but constant level of physical activity helps to keep an active metabolism and thus control body weight fluctuations. Choosing sports like yoga and pilates are particularly recommended for anyone with mood swings, as they also benefit your psychological and emotional balance.

Physical activity also stimulates the production of well-being hormones such as endorphins and serotonin, which have an impact on your mood and can help to regulate your sleeping habits.

SLEEP

Insomnia or disturbed sleep patterns is a common and often underestimated menopausal problem. It is essential to find solutions for this issue as it doesn't just impact women's quality of life, but may also lead to increased health risks such as cardiovascular weaknesses and depression. Some natural solutions can give great results: combining a meditative activity in the evening, such as yoga, with specific vitamin supplements can frequently return sleeping patterns back to normal, without the need for any medication.

SMOKING

Smoking is a significant hindrance during menopause. It negatively influences hot flashes, increases the risk of osteoporosis and cardiovascular illnesses, and damages skin by reducing oxygenation, making it appear duller.

USEFUL SUPPLEMENTS

MULTIVITAMIN: for general nutritional needs.

OMEGA 3: an important support for the immune system, which can control lipid metabolism, the brain function and overall mood balance.

VITAMIN D: acts in synergy with other vitamins and mineral salts to promote the correct level of calcification of the bones. It also supports the immune system and glucose metabolism.

5-HYDROXYTRYPTOPHAN: useful for regulating sleep and reducing anxiety.

SPECIFIC SUPPLEMENTS FOR HOT FLASHES: there are various types (based on black cohosh, red clover or soy isoflavones). Reactions may vary by person and so it is worth finding the best supplement for your needs.

MAGNESIUM SUPREME (MAGNESIUM SALT): this is recommended for anyone with a slow digestion, as well as to balance mood and sleep. Warm baths with magnesium sulphate can be taken: when absorbed via the skin, it has a relaxing effect on muscles and reduces anxiety and tension.

SKIN TONE

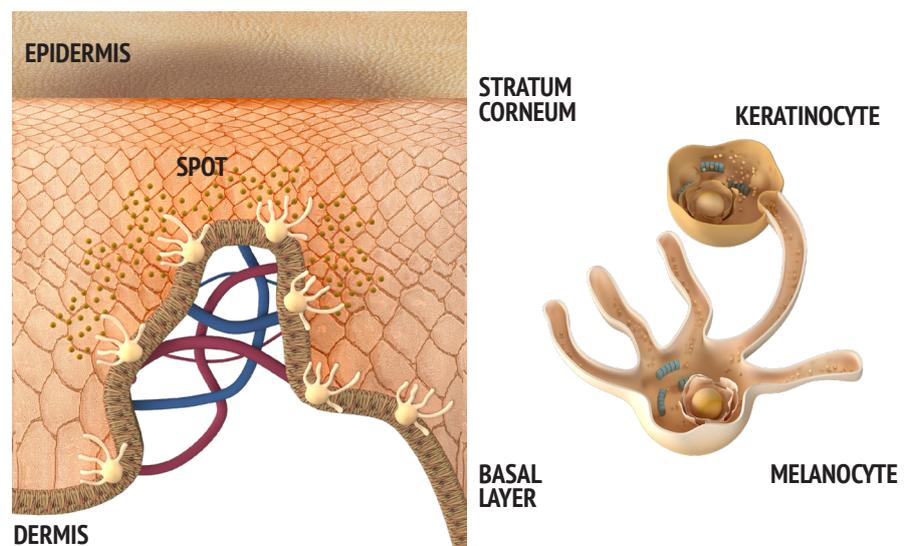

Uneven complexion and skin tone are one of women's main concerns, irrespective of their skin type or color. In Europe 1 out of 4 women, and in China 37% of women are concerned with the appearance of dark spots. There are many reasons for wanting a bright and even complexion: to look younger, erase acne scars and skin blemishes, feel more self-confident and social recognition.

The factors leading to the appearance of dark spots and uneven pigmentation are numerous: excessive exposure to UV rays (photo-aging), free radicals, stress, pollution, hormonal imbalances during pregnancy or the use of contraceptives, as well as biological aging.

To complete its anti-aging offer with more targeted solutions, Sublime Skin adds two new formulas designed specifically for the treatment and prevention of age or sun spots.

MELANOCYTES

Melanocytes account for 5% of the skin cells and follicles: they are located in the lower layer (the basal layer) of the skin's epidermis, and have melanosomes that contain the pigment melanin. They feature long branched extensions called dendrites that are surrounded by keratinocytes, the structural cells of the skin. Every melanocyte can come into contact with more than thirty different keratinocytes.

MELANOGENESIS

Melanogenesis is the production of melanin by the melanocytes, and it has a photoprotective function. It is a combined mechanism of physical, biochemical and morphological factors through which the skin protects itself from the action of solar radiation and other external agents (smog, dust, etc.). Ideally, this process should take place in a uniform way, but because of genetic factors, external factors and lifestyle, it may be uneven, resulting in HYPERPIGMENTATION.

SUBLIME SKIN

THE THREE STEPS OF HYPERPIGMENTATION

So how do spots appear and become visible on the skin?

Three steps lead to hyperpigmentation:

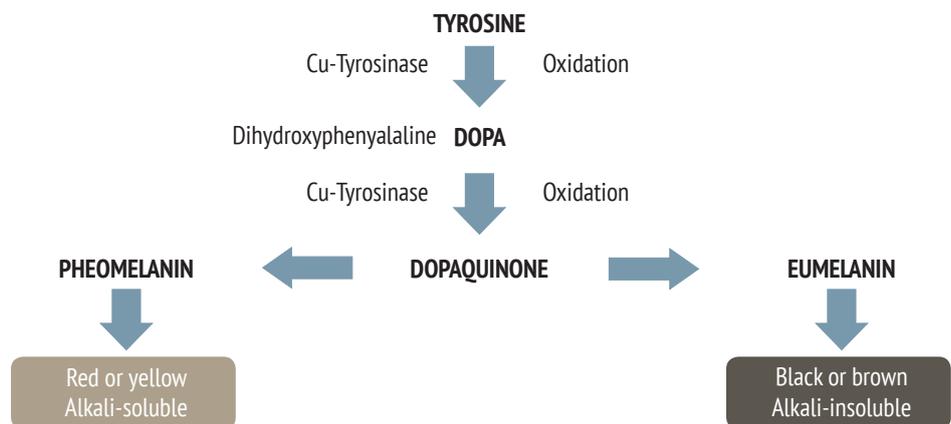

1. INFLAMMATION initial mechanism that causes an alteration in melanogenesis.
2. SYNTHESIS AND TRANSFER OF MELANIN to provide an additional skin defence.
3. ACCUMULATION OF MELANIN to protect the skin.

STEP 1 INFLAMMATION

Especially due to aging, skin accumulates the effects of repeated sun exposure and several inflammatory states due to lifestyle that have an impact on the complex melanin synthesis system. The synthesis of melanin is indeed mostly stimulated by sun radiation. But inflammation can also lead to the production of cytokines, inflammatory substances (prostaglandins, cytokines) capable of triggering further melanin synthesis. Some melanocytes start producing excess melanin that tends to accumulate in specific areas giving rise to unpleasant dark spots.

STEP 2 SYNTHESIS AND TRANSFER OF MELANIN

The amino acid tyrosine is the raw material for the production of melanin. The enzyme tyrosinase turns tyrosine into melanin. In melanosomes, in the presence of oxygen and when exposed to ultraviolet rays, tyrosinase undergoes an oxidation process that turns tyrosine into DOPA, which first turns into dopaquinone, then into eumelanin or pheomelanin, the two forms of melanin – eumelanin which is darker and pheomelanin which is lighter – this is what defines phototypes.

Melanin produced in melanosomes is transported via the dendrites to the keratinocytes.

STEP 3 ACCUMULATION OF MELANIN

The melanin surrounded by keratinocytes protects DNA from UV rays. Keratinocytes show a continuous process of differentiation and migration through the various skin layers until they reach the horny layer ending their transformation in the flat keratinocytes. An abnormal production of melanin gives rise to accumulations of pigment that lead to the appearance of unpleasant dark spots. The melanin produced in melanosomes is carried through dendrites to the keratinocytes.

FOCUS ON

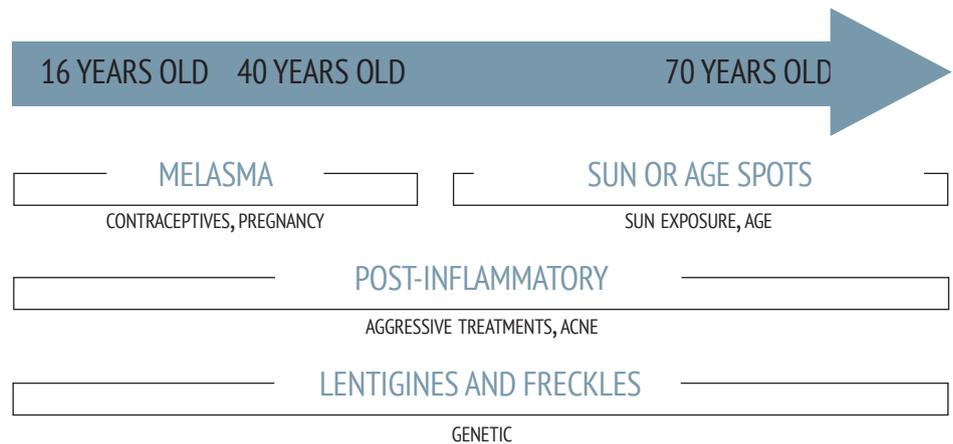

I melanociti possono sintetizzare due tipi di melanina determinanti il colore della pelle:
EUMELANINA
Biopolimeri neri o marroni responsabili delle colorazioni scure in grado di offrire una maggiore protezione contro i raggi UV.
FEOMELANINA
Biopolimeri rossi o gialli responsabili delle colorazioni più chiare con minor protezione contro i raggi UV.

HYPERPIGMENTATION

Dark spots, also known as hyperpigmentation, are an aesthetic problem that is extremely varied both in origin and appearance:

SUN OR AGE SPOTS (LENTIGO)
MELASMA OR CHLOASMA
POST-INFLAMMATORY HYPERPIGMENTATION
LENTIGINES AND FRECKLES

SUN OR AGE SPOTS

They are dark spots with variable size and color, they are normally clearly circumscribed and localized and appear with age in areas that are chronically photo exposed (face, neck, décolleté, hands). They are more frequent after the age of 40, but they can also appear at earlier ages according to sun exposure habits. Once they appear, they can increase in number and size.

The identification of the specific spot type is made more accurate with the use of a Wood's lamp. The Wood's Lamp with 20 x magnification (20 times more than what the naked eye can see) and a special blue light that lets through only a part of the visible rays, enables us to see skin features that are not visible to the naked eye. Under the Wood's lamp the spot shows a darker pigment than the surrounding skin because the pigment is located on the surface. The more the accumulation of melanin is superficial, the darker the spot looks, brown or dark brown color; whereas, the lighter the color, the deeper the spot is, and therefore is more difficult to treat.

VISUAL ANALYSIS

ANALYSIS WITH WOOD'S LAMP 20X

COSMETIC TREATMENT

Depigmenting (lightening) cosmetic treatments are recommended in combination with professional peelings or dermatological treatments such as laser, pulsed light, radio frequency, infra-red, ultrasound, microdermabrasion, led, microcurrent. High photo-protection SPF 50 must be always be included in the daily beauty routine.

MELASMA

Melasma is also known as chloasma or “pregnancy mask” is a chronic disorder that impacts the individual since it is such a challenging disorder to treat.

It is mostly present on the face (forehead, upper lip, chin and cheeks) in an asymmetric way with “map-like” irregular borders. The forearms can also be affected.

The causes of Melasma are still being investigated, some of the main ones being sun exposure and estrogens. It is proven that pregnant women experience the appearance of dark spots more easily. The reason seems to be linked to hormone levels that can significantly increase the activity of tyrosinase. Sun exposure is supposed to be the triggering concurrent cause of such alterations. Melasma is indeed more evident in summer months than in winter months, when sun exposure is lower. Genetic predisposition, influence of other hormones such as progestogens, ovulation disorders, drugs or stress can be listed among the other causes.

The identification of the specific type of Melasma can be done first of all with a clinical/visual analysis considering its location (forehead, cheeks, lip area) and shape (map-like with various colors). Subsequently, the use of a microcamera helps complete the assessment: the use of the Wood’s lamp makes it possible to identify the depth of the pigment. The more the accumulation of melanin is superficial, the darker the spot looks, brown or dark brown color; whereas, the lighter the color, the deeper is the spot and thus it is more difficult to treat.

Melasma normally has a mixed, i.e. dermal and epidermal, location that makes its treatment particularly difficult.

VISUAL ANALYSIS

COSMETIC TREATMENT

The most effective approach is based on the daily use of a wide spectrum photo-protection SPF50, of camouflage and active skin lightening products. Several studies have indeed shown a positive response of Melasma to a suitable photo-protection and appearance of recurrences. Instead, Melasma cannot be treated with laser, infra-red and microdermabrasion, whereas it can be treated using radio-frequency, ultrasound, micro-current and led.

POST-INFLAMMATORY HYPERPIGMENTATION

It may appear after injuries or abrasions, irritations, dermatosis (acne), especially in darker phototypes. It is due to an over production of melanin with an uneven distribution. Inflammatory mediators and free radicals are involved. When the accumulation of melanin takes place in the epidermis, hyperpigmentation is brown or dark brown; if it is located in the dermis, it is grey-blue. Melasma treated with aggressive peelings can also lead to post-inflammatory hyperpigmentation.

The identification of the specific type of post-inflammatory spot can be done initially with a clinical/visual analysis and with specific questions on the skin history and situation. Subsequently, the use of a microcamera helps complete the assessment: the use of the Wood's lamp makes it possible to identify the depth of the pigment. Under the Wood's lamp it looks like a spot that is hardly identifiable with slightly darker areas compared to the surrounding skin. It is a wide spot where the pigment has different locations, it is deeper in certain parts and more superficial in others. The more the accumulation of melanin is superficial, the darker the spot looks, brown or dark brown color; whereas, the lighter the color, the deeper is the spot and thus it is more difficult to treat.

VISUAL ANALYSIS

COSMETIC TREATMENT

It is important to use a high protection factor SPF50 on a daily basis. Furthermore, with the help of an expert it is important to choose the most appropriate dermatological and cosmetic methods: dermatological chemical and cosmetic peeling, laser, microdermabrasion, microcurrent, infra-red, ultrasound, pulsed light and led.

SUBLIME SKIN

LENTIGINES AND FRECKLES: GENETICALLY DETERMINED UNEVEN SKIN TONE

Lentigines and freckles, even if apparently very similar, are actually two different types of skin spots. Freckles, also known as ephelides, appear in areas exposed to sunlight, especially face and décolleté. They do not exist on mucosae and on skin that is not exposed to the sun. They are very common in people with red or blond hair. Their formation is caused by an oxidation process triggered by the UV rays that hit the skin. Freckles indeed appear in summer and diminish in winter.

Lentigines instead are very superficial accumulations of melanin and can be present on the entire body, including areas that are not exposed to sunlight and can be present in the mucosae. Lentigines are sometimes present from birth or appear during childhood, and they may increase in number and intensity during puberty.

VISUAL ANALYSIS

COSMETIC TREATMENT

It is possible to act on freckles and lentigines in a temporary, but not definitive way. They can be removed by a dermatologist with laser and their visibility can be reduced with the application of lightening creams and light peelings, always in combination with a high protection factor SPF50.

KLIGMAN'S TRIO

Kligman's Trio is still considered the unrivaled anti-spot treatment among the various combinations of active ingredients available in dermatology. Associating anti-inflammatory cortisone with hydroquinone that inhibits tyrosinase, and retinoic acid to exfoliate and even out the skin tone, this combination acts synergistically on all the three steps of melanogenesis. This trio, that can be used only under dermatological supervision and applied only on the dark spots, has proven to be more effective compared to the application of each active ingredient used individually.

SPOT PREVENTION AND CORRECTION

Thanks to the collaboration with Doctor Mariuccia Bucci and drawing inspiration from the most effective dermatological formulas, [comfort zone] research and development laboratories propose a highly effective prevention and correction approach for the treatment of dark age or sun spots. The new SUBLIME SKIN CORRECTOR is enriched with the exclusive TRI-WHITE COMPLEX that mimics the action of the Kligman's Trio at a cosmetic level and exploits the synergy of several molecules to act on the three steps of melanogenesis: anti-inflammatory, lightening and exfoliating action. Clinically tested, this concentrated serum, applied on dark spots twice a day together with SUBLIME SKIN COLOR PERFECT SPF50, has shown visible lightening results after 2 months of use.

SUBLIME SKIN COLOR PERFECT SPF50 is a wide spectrum colored cream that complements the correcting product in a fundamental way because of the effective wide spectrum protection from the sun, which is the main cause of uneven skin tone. Furthermore, enriched with Palmitoyl glycine, SUBLIME SKIN COLOR PERFECT SPF50 prevents the onset of spots and, at the same time, contrasts the sun's degenerative effects on collagen. The subtle color and brightening texture immediately leads to a more even skin tone. It is an ideal base for makeup and is available both in retail and professional sizes to be used at the end of any treatment, in particular when acids are used.

TRI-WHITE COMPLEX

An exclusive complex mimicking the Kligman's Trio, with natural ingredients and high-tech molecules that synergistically work on the three steps that regulate pigmentation: reducing inflammation, the primary cause of melanin synthesis; balancing the synthesis of the pigment; and lightening effect through a keratolytic action.

STEP 1 ANTI-INFLAMMATORY ACTION: PHYSALIS ANGULATA ECOCERT™

The extract of Physalis Angulata is a natural antioxidant and anti-inflammatory active ingredient: it is an innovative solution for the treatment and the prevention of damage caused by radiation because it reduces the key triggers of photo-aging. The selected extract is certified Ecocert™ and is obtained with supercritical fluid extraction, a latest generation technology that leads to highly concentrated extracts that do not contain chemical solvents, complying with the strictest standards of environmental sustainability.

STEP 2 INHIBITION SYNTHESIS AND TRANSPORT OF MELANIN:

4-N BUTYLRESORCINOL and PUNARNAVA EXTRACT

To favor a lightening action, it is essential to act on tyrosinase, the enzyme that controls the synthesis of melanin. This is the reason why two active ingredients have been chosen. 4-N butylresorcinol with a powerful inhibiting capacity of the tyrosinase enzyme, comparable to hydroquinone, but without its side effects that have limited its use in aesthetics (melanocyte cytotoxicity). More effective than kojic acid and arbutin, 4-N butylresorcinol is resorcinol's most active form.

Its action is strengthened by Punarnava, an extract obtained from the roots of an Ayurvedic plant that, besides inhibiting the synthesis of the enzymes required to produce melanin, it also reduces the number of dendrites, limiting the release of melanin onto the keratinocytes.

STEP 3 INCREASE OF CELL TURNOVER: KERATOLYTIC ENZYME

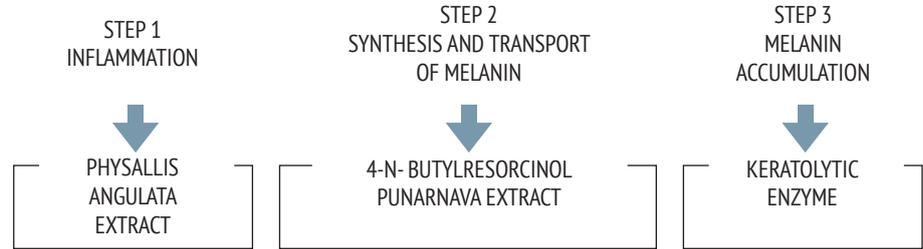

In the treatment of dark sun and age spots, the use of exfoliating agents is recommended to give an immediate even and radiant look thanks to their numerous actions:

- they accelerate cell turnover at a skin level and thus diminish the transfer of melanosomes to keratinocytes
- they increase flaking and thus the loss of melanin in the horny layer
- they favor the absorption of other lightening active ingredients

THE KERATOLYTIC ENZYME selected is a fermented enzyme that acts with an alternative mechanism to that of alpha-hydroxy acids eliminating dead cells without causing inflammation. It activates the Cathepsin D enzyme that promotes the breakdown of intercellular bridges favoring exfoliation.

BEAUTY TIP

With sensitive skins it is advisable to introduce REMEDY SERUM into the beauty routine, to be used as a soothing and protective serum. Acid-based professional treatments may be suggested to boost the lightening performance of home care products.

LIFESTYLE HABITS BEAUTY ROUTINE

CORRECTORS AND SUN PROTECTION

The application of depigmenting serums is mostly for evening use, after correct cleansing, on the individual spots: the depigmenting substances are therefore boosted by night regeneration. Since these substances tend to dehydrate, it is advisable to apply the usual moisturizer. Depigmenting products can also be used in the morning to accelerate results. Considering that UV is the most common cause of uneven skin tone, a good cosmetic or pharmacological lightening treatment must always include a suitable wide spectrum (UVB and UVA) sun protection with a high protection factor to be applied several times a day and all year round. Furthermore, in the management of uneven skin tone the use of corrective or camouflage makeup is increasingly more important. This is achieved by using makeup products with different beige tones with high coverage capacity, capable of disguising uneven tones in an effective way with a considerable positive impact on the quality of daily life. Unprotected sun exposure, use of self-tanning products and perfumes must be avoided for all types of spots because these products may aggravate uneven tone.

DIET

What you choose to eat can prevent the aggravation of dark spot formation. In particular, avoiding substances like sugar, alcohol and dairy products helps to significantly reduce pigmentation alterations. Recommended foods are those containing vitamins and antioxidant substances that carry out a remarkable protective action because they favor correct melanogenesis and pigment distribution.

Such foods include:

- WHEAT GERM OIL AND OLIVE OIL rich in antioxidant vitamin E.
- CITRUS FRUIT rich in antioxidant Vitamin C that stimulates tone and brightness
- OILY FISH source of Omega 3 that protect cell membranes and reduce inflammation.
- BROCCOLI AND CAULIFLOWER that help the body get rid of excess estrogens that cause melasma.
- NUTS AND PULSES source of zinc, essential for the skin repair process.

DIETARY SUPPLEMENTS

An inflammatory process and an excessive stimulation of melanogenesis are the culprits of hyperpigmentation. To contrast these processes, we must act with antioxidant supplements. Oxidative stress at the skin level causes inflammation with oxidation of the proteins and lipids of the skin surface, which in turn alters the barrier. Finally, the oxidative stress stimulates metalloprotease and inhibits all the enzymes that are responsible for the biosynthesis of the extracellular matrix molecules thus altering the skin structure. It is therefore important to choose supplements, such as the ones listed below, particularly rich in powerful antioxidants specific for this problem.

MARITIME PINE EXTRACT

It is obtained from the thick and dark red bark of French Maritime Pine, and it is rich in Pycnogenol. Pycnogenol protects the skin from stress and damage caused by sun burn and photo-aging, and it reduces hyperpigmentation for a more even complexion. Furthermore, it realigns the collagen fibers in a non-damaged form, it binds with proteins like elastin, and it protects the skin from various noxious enzymes. Elasticity is restored, which is essential for a smooth and young skin, and to delay the appearance of wrinkles and blemishes. Pycnogenol is also a natural support for capillaries and blood vessels, and it supports the skin in cases of rosacea and hypersensitivity.

REDUCED GLUTATHIONE

Fundamental chemical compound of the body and powerful antioxidant, it is of fundamental importance in all organs and tissues: in healthy cells the ratio between reduced glutathione and oxidized glutathione is normally 9:1. An imbalance in such a ratio may be an indication of high levels of oxidative stress in our body. Its special chemical composition makes it very useful to contrast the damaging action of free radicals and to adjust many cell functions, such as DNA synthesis and repair, protein synthesis and adjustment of various enzymes that are important for the life of the body itself.

STRENGTHS

Intensive localized action.
Action on the 3 steps of melanogenesis.
Visible and tested results in 2 months.
Ideal for all skins.

HOW IT WORKS

TRI-WHITE COMPLEX

PHYSALIS ANGULATA EXTRACT: an extract obtained from a Brazilian plant that acts on the first step of pigmentation: inflammation. The extract promotes a soothing action that increases the skin's antioxidant capacity when exposed to the sun.

PUNARNAVA EXTRACT: obtained from the roots of a renowned Ayurvedic herb, Boerhavia Diffusa, it is an "intelligent" lightening ingredient with the ability to reduce the intensity of the pigmentation through a mechanism that modulates the release of the tyrosinase enzyme, and it limits the number of dendrites that transports the pigment to the surface. It therefore reduces the melanin synthesis and its transport to the surface.

4-N-BUTYLRESORCINOL: is considered the most potent inhibitor of the tyrosinase enzyme. It reduces the synthesis of melanin, promoting a lightening action.

KERATOLYTIC ENZYME: exfoliates the superficial dead skin cells with a much more delicate mechanism than that of alpha hydroxy acids, ensuring a rapid improvement of the dark spots.

HOW TO USE

Apply locally to the specific areas morning and evening before the chosen moisturizer. Complete with SUBLIME SKIN SPF50 during the day. Avoid or minimize sun exposure.

RECOMMENDED

For the treatment of localized spots caused by aging and sun exposure. Ideal for other areas of the body: face, décolleté, hands.

NECK STRETCHING & HEAD MASSAGE	7. During the application time make pleasant and delicate stretching and rotations of the head using the towel technique to facilitate relaxation of the neck muscles. Thereafter proceed with scalp massage to relieve head tension and for an overall rebalancing effect on the whole body.

GLOSSARY

ACETYL TETRAPEPTIDE 9 and 11

Peptides that act at the cellular level, promoting collagen synthesis and the interaction between the 'building blocks' of the skin structure. They support the correct distribution of collagen fibers in the ECM, strengthen epidermal bonding and the junction between the epidermis and dermis, resulting in reduced wrinkles and increased skin density.

ACETYL-HEXAPEPTIDE 1

A biomimetic peptide scientifically designed to mimic the action of botox, it acts at the neuromuscular junction level by inhibiting muscle contraction mechanisms. This effect results in the relaxation of surface wrinkles, which are reduced in both volume and depth.

ACETYL-HEXAPEPTIDE 8

Multifunctional ingredient that directly counteracts cellular aging and provides a Botox-like action. Acts on SASPs, the mediators of inflammation secreted by aging cells, affecting adjacent cells in all layers of the skin, contributing to overall skin aging. It can also reduce expression lines for instantly fresher and younger looking skin.

ACHILLEA MILLEFOLIUM

From the Davines scientific garden, one of the oldest plants known and used by man, rediscovered and extracted through a sustainable method that uses high-pressure water. The name comes from Achilles, who used to treat wounds with Achillea. Rich in chlorogenic acid, it has been clinically proven to increase collagen synthesis and reduce collagenase.

AESCIN

A blend of triterpenoid saponins extracted from the horse chestnut plant, widely used in pharmacology and dermatology for their vasoprotective, decongestant and draining properties. In topical applications, it carries out its action at capillary level and activates the microcirculation.

ALGINATES

Derived from brown algae, they have a remineralizing and firming function.

ARCHI-LIFT TECHNOLOGY™

Exclusive approach [comfortzone] to act in synergy with the three key components (water, lipids and proteins) within the three layers of the skin for active lifting from within.

ARGININE

Alkaline pH stabilizer that is skin-friendly since it is part of our skin structure.

BICHAT BUBBLE

Adipose cushion responsible for supporting the cheek and giving it roundness. As we age, it tends to shrink, and with it the facial muscles that play a role in the loss of physical support tend to weaken, exacerbating the loss of facial contour definition.

CAFFEINE

An active molecule naturally found in coffee beans, tea, etc. It is widely used in skin care for its lipolytic and draining action.

CELLULAR AGING

A phenomenon that affects all cells and all skin layers, comprehensively and progressively compromising skin function. After reaching the senescence stage, the cells essentially die, however that is not all. Studies have shown that senescent cells release harmful substances, known as SASPs (see below).

CHEMOKINE

Representative molecule of SASPs in the form of inflammatory proteins.

CHRYSIN

Flavonoid that stimulates brightening enzymes that eliminate accumulated bilirubin to counteract dark circles with an anti-blue effect.

CITRIC ACID

An alpha-hydroxy acid commonly found in citrus fruits, it has an exfoliating action and helps counteract damage caused by sun and pollution.

COLLAGEN

The main structural protein in the skin's connective tissues.

COLLAGENASE

Enzyme responsible for collagen breakdown.

CONSCIOUS PACKAGING

Packaging "eco-progettato", paying close attention to the choice of components, 100% recyclable, possibly with recycled materials and attention also to the product's end-of-life to limit and compensate the CO2 footprint.

SUBLIME SKIN

GLOSSARY

DEGENER-AGING™	Irreversible functional slowing of the skin that causes structural degeneration aggravated by unbalanced lifestyles. This is made visible by facial changes in terms of shape and surface area. The face is 'emptied'. The skin shows loss of elasticity, softness and radiance, accompanied by dehydration, deep wrinkles and the appearance of discoloration.
DERMIS	Connective and vascular fibrous tissue.
DOUBLE PEEL METHOD	Professional intensive and personalized exfoliation method in two steps to guarantee each skin the safest and most effective results.
DYSCHROMIA	Alteration of skin color due to different causes: inflammation, hormones, acne and sun damage.
ELASTASE	Enzyme responsible for elastin breakdown.
ELASTIN	Highly elastic protein in connective tissue.
EPIDERMIS	Outermost layer of the skin, a non-vascularized tissue primarily made up of epithelial cells.
FLAVONOID	Plant-based compound with powerful antioxidant properties.
GLUCONOLACTONE	Polyhydroxy acid that stimulates cell turnover in the epidermis. The special shape and large size of the molecular structure promote a moisturizing and plumping action.
GLYCOLIC ACID	Alpha-hydroxy acid that intensely stimulates cell turnover in the epidermis. The molecule's very small structure permits a deep anti-aging action.
HESPERIDIN	Flavonoid that reduces capillary permeability and inflammation, while activating the lymphatic system.
HEXAPEPTIDE	Chemically composed of amino acids with an effect similar to that of botulinum toxin for an immediate visible lifting action.
HYALURONIC ACID	Known for its hygroscopic properties, it can attract and retain water, imitating the effect of water filling. The macro version has an immediate action at the epidermal level and the micro version has a more gradual and deeper effect at the dermal level.
HYGROSCOPIC	Which absorbs or attracts water.
HYPODERMIS	The deepest layer of the skin with a protective function. Contains adipose tissue and loose connective tissue.
ILLIPE BUTTER	Hydrates and moisturizes the skin, making it silky.
INTERLEUKINS	Representative molecule of SASPs in the form of inflammatory proteins.
LACTIC ACID	Alpha-hydroxy acid that weakens the intercellular connections that bind keratinocytes in the stratum corneum. Also promotes a moisturizing action, making tissues turgid and full. Applied before other exfoliants, it promotes absorption of acids, optimizing their effectiveness.
LACTOBIONIC ACID	Bionic acid, an evolution of alpha-hydroxy acids. Helps slow down the exfoliation process, assisted by a strong antioxidant and moisturizing action. It can also bind heavy metals present on the skin, counteracting the formation of free radicals.
LCA (Life Cycle Assessment)	Quantitative and timely measurement of how the entire product life cycle impacts the environment. Makes it possible to calculate the Global Warming Potential, i.e. the amount of CO2 equivalent emitted during the product's life cycle: from the choice of raw materials to packaging, to the transformation stage at Davines Village, inbound and outbound transport, and end of life.

SUBLIME SKIN

GLOSSARY

MANDELIC ACID	Gentle exfoliating action that counteracts hyperkeratosis and promotes cell renewal for a specific brightening action.
MELANOCYTES	Cells that produce pigments.
MELASMA/ CHLOASMA	A form of hyperpigmentation that appears on the face, usually on the cheeks, bridge of the nose, forehead and upper lip, and sometimes on other sun-exposed parts of the body, such as the forearms. It is similar to age spots, but the areas affected by the problem are larger.
microRNA	Small molecules that alter protein gene transcription. Those found in the skin impair collagen and elastin synthesis.
MMP (METALLOPROTEINASE)	Enzymes that break down collagen and elastin.
OLIGOPEPTIDE 1 (PLANT-BASED EGF)	Obtained biotechnologically from plant structure. Regulates the synthesis of extracellular matrix components responsible for the fullness and tone of the face. Improves cell regeneration and stimulates the natural production of hyaluronic acid, collagen and elastin, which significantly increase skin elasticity and firmness.
PAEONIA ALBIFLORA	Imitates the lipo-filler effect, stimulating the transformation of pre-adipocytes into adipocytes and thus providing the products' firming effect.
PEPTIDE	Contains two or more amino acids. Depending on the various combinations of amino acids, it has different benefits for the skin.
PHYTIC ACID	Powerful antioxidant that protects the skin from oxidative stress.
PLANTAGO LANCEOLATA	Titred extract that inhibits microRNA and thus stimulates new collagen and elastin and protects their correct functioning. It also reduces and prevents the appearance of age spots.
SASP (Senescence-associated secretory phenotype)	Inflammatory substances released by senescent cells. These molecules attack neighboring cells, activating premature aging in these cells. A chain reaction is triggered that leads to a worsening of the Degener-aging™ phenomenon and accelerates the aging process in all skin layers.
TAPIOCA STARCH	A three-dimensional matrix is extracted from it and distributed on the skin surface, creating, within a few minutes, a viscoelastic film with an immediate tensor effect.
VITAMIN PP	A key ingredient in regulating blood flow to the skin, reactivating microcirculation and optimizing tissue oxygenation. Has a moisturizing and brightening action. Promotes the synthesis of epidermal ceramides.
